IS ECONOMICAL FOR A WOMAN TO BUY GOOD CLOTHES

Dr. John A. Widtsoe, president of the University of Utah, was unanimously elected president of the Utah educational association at its recent convention held in this city. Dr. Widtsoe was elected for the ensuing year, and succeeds in this office Dr. C. Jensen, superintendent of schools in Jordan district.

The series of earthquakes that have demolished the city of Guatemala in the past two weeks have been of sufficient violence to record their vibrations on the seismograph located on the campus of the University of Utah. The length of each major tremor, the time of its occurrence, the distance away, and its approximate direction from Salt Lake City, were all revealed by this delicately adjusted instrument several hours before the news agencies could flash the dispatch over the wires.

Prof. Hyrum Schneider of the department of geology, reports that the Guatemala record is among the most conspicuous and interesting that have been received at the local station.

That is more economical for a woman who is earning $45 a month to purchase a $40 suit than a $20 one is the opinion of Miss Parke, who is at present paying special attention to economy of buying, in her classes in domestic arts at the University of Utah. She offers as reasons for this opinion the facts that the more expensive suit looks better, presses better, cleans better, retains its shape longer, and may be made over for a second year of wear.

The budget system in the apportionment of means at the disposal of either the college woman or the housewife, is being urged. In the case of the housewife it has been found that the amount that should be set aside for clothing varies from 15 to 17 per cent of the total family income.

The university women who are studying textile work, are collecting 500 samples of different kinds of fabrics. If a woman is to buy economically, believes Miss Parke, she must know how to identify various kinds of clothing material. In the matter of wearing apparel the public is not protected by law as it is in the purchasing of food products. A fabric that is labeled "all wool" is often half cotton. Many people buy 75 per cent cotton goods for all wool fabrics, and do not know until it is too late that they have been swindled. The women who cannot detect the deception is at the mercy of unscrupulous merchants.

Miss Parke relates that the domestic arts department bought recently from a local house a yard of cloth, 44 inch width, that was marked "all wool." For it she paid $2.50, an "all wool" price. Analysis revealed the fact, however, that fully half of the warp, as well as half of the woof, was pure cotton. Its real market value was, therefore, not more than $1.25, just half of the sale price.

The course in bacteriology of foods that Dr. L. L. Daines of the department of bacteriology in the University of Utah is giving in Salt Lake City by extension, is attracting nationwide attention. He reports that he is receiving inquiries from many, and far distant sources concerning his outlines and methods of instruction.

The double aim of the course is to teach the housewife how to conserve foods and how to detect whether or not they are in a state of preservation that would render them unfit for use. Just at present Dr. Daines is working on the spoiled fruit problem, a matter that is causing alarm in various quarters of the state. The course in bacteriology of the art department of the University of Utah training school, has recently demonstrated the possibility of Hooverizing in art. From old tin cans, wooden bowls and chalk boxes her boys and girls have made fruit baskets, jewel boxes and a number of other useful things. Some of them would rival in beauty and design and workmanship the same articles purchased in art shops at from five to ten dollars each. And this has all been accomplished, she says, with white enamel furnished by the school and a bit of colored paint.

A unique contribution to the Y. M. C. A. Christmas fund of five dollars that accrued in nickels from the sale of post cards designed and made by the lower grades of the training school.

Miss Ware is emphasizing originality of design, and she says that the little folks, unhampered by convention or self-consciousness do work that is really artistic. "The students' work is motivated by allowing them to make costumes for their little dramas, and various other things for decorative purposes.

"Our pupils are so interested in their art work," she says, "that we can hardly drive them from the room when the hour is up."

Since the establishment several weeks ago at the University of Utah of the physical examination unit for aviation service, 100 applicants have gone through the series of strenuous tests. Of this number, Dean Snow of the medical school reports, only 25 per cent have demonstrated their fitness for the work. This, he thinks, is about the average of those succeeding in meeting the requirements the country over. The reason for such a large percentage of failure is the fact that almost physical perfection is demanded for this branch of the service. Men who could get into other branches without question are turned down by the aviation examining corps.

The men who have applied at the local examining station thus far are a very representative group, a number hailing from each of the international states.

Prof. Walter A. Kerr of the department of modern languages in the University of Utah has just received a large number of beautiful pictorial posters from the war offices of the Dominion of Canada. Each one is an appeal to the French-Canadian, in his own tongue, to join the colors of the United Kingdom.

These posters are being utilized for classroom instruction, and are proving to be very stimulating. Besides affording an unusual opportunity for vocabulary building and the translation of interesting text, there is an appeal to the patriotic sentiment of the American, both in the picture and in the message.

FARMERS DESIRE MORE SNOWFALL

The temperature in Ogden took a considerable upward turn today. But it only got warm so it could snow a little, and snow it did. For a while Ogden was gray with the falling snow and several inches were added to the scant supply on the ground.

Farmers are expressing much satisfaction over the arrival of snow as they say it presages good conditions next season. There has not been enough fall so far, however, they declare, to do much good and they are eagerly anticipating a heavier fall.

MEN URGED TO STAY IN SERVICE

Officers and Employees Asked to Stay in Department of Justice.

GREGORY POSTS NOTICE

Needed During War Emergency and Their Patriotism Is Appealed To.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Officers and employees of the department of justice were urged by Attorney General Gregory in a notice posted today in all offices, not to leave the government service for private employment, even at a higher salary, until the war emergency is past.

"Every efficient employee of the government who leaves its service and goes into that of a private individual weakens to that extent the power of the government under existing conditions," said the attorney general. "I therefore earnestly hope that none of the employees of this department will take advantage of any such offer until the time has come when they can do so without striking a blow at the efficiency of the country."

Loyal Service Needed.

"At no time in our history have the needs of our country for faithful and loyal service been so great as now. Most of us are by age or otherwise disqualified from making the supreme sacrifice of going into the fighting lines, but a duty equally as grave rests upon us of guarding the rear of seeing that all government functions are efficiently performed and seeing that everything necessary to be done is done to sustain and maintain the men in our army and navy."

"I know of no more unpatriotic thing than for a citizen of the United States to capitalize and make money out of the present situation. On account of the absence of many men at the front and the enormous increase in the various activities of our country incidental to the prosecution of the war, private individuals frequently offer larger salaries than the government and I can well understand how government employees may feel that they owe it to themselves and their families to accept such offers. A moment's reflection will show that their first duty is to their country and that, not being able to fight, the only thing they can do is to bravely bear their part of the burden until the emergency is past."
